

Identifying Basic Emotions: Answer Scheme

How many emotions are recognizable across the world? Psychologists have identified that there are certain emotions that are experienced and expressed in largely the same manner across human cultures. These similarities gives us some indication that as humans, we have the inborn ability to recognize and expressed certain important, basic emotions.

Instructions: Name the emotions you see being expressed by each of the persons below.

Anger, frustration, irritation, rage, fury.

Fear, anxiety, worry, nervousness, scared.

Joy, happiness, delight, pleasure, satisfaction, contentment.

Sadness, unhappiness, concern.

Disgust, revulsion.

Surprise, shocked, amazed, awed, wonder.

Anger, frustration, irritation, rage, fury.

Fear, anxiety, worry, terror, scared.

Joy, happiness, delight, pleasure, satisfaction, contentment.

Sadness, unhappiness, concern.

Disgust, revulsion.

Surprise, shocked, amazed, startled, awed, wonder.